The problem of anxiety and social isolation of

Chairs    Assoc. Prof. Ph.D. Ana Maria Aurelia PETRESCU, “Valahia” University of Târgoviște, Romania, Teacher Training Department,  &amp;  Psychologist Andreea Maria POPESCU, “Valahia” University of Târgoviște, Romania, Career Counseling and Business Environment Relations Department,  &amp;  Career Counselor Gheorghe GÎLIA, “Valahia” University of Târgoviște, Romania, Career Counseling and Business Environment Relations Department Timing   40 minutes session	individuals seems to be much more present in a pandemic context. As is well known, isolation is perhaps the greatest enemy in the way of the harmonious development and evolution of people. The isolation of the individual from the others, the rupture of the connections, the contacts, disconnection from the social life, leads in time to psychological and social “wilting”, to the annulment as a human being. In this context, we are now talking not only about an isolated problem, but about a global challenge, a pandemic. That is why, nowadays, more than ever, there is a need for counseling, for support, in order to be able to face the actual challenges, but also for the adequate adaptation of the individual to the new social context. Each of us is a unique entity, and our perception of the idea of using specialized support is different. If we refer to the pyramid of needs, according to Maslow, we find that the need for social and emotional security represents a basic need, common to all people. So, if we start from what is common, we can more easily identify, understand and accept what differentiates us and makes us different. In line with the abovementioned facts, we propose in this Workshop to reach the following objectives: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- presentation of the services offered by Career Counseling and Business Environment Relations Department, from “Valahia” University of Târgoviște, Romania;</li> <li>- testing the awareness of direct beneficiaries concerning the need for counseling in academic environment;</li> <li>- identifying solutions for optimizing the counselor-counseled interactions in the pandemic context.</li> </ul> Topics   psychologic counseling, career counseling, identified needs, communication, relationship

Overview |

“Open schooling” is where schools, in cooperation with other stakeholders, become an agent of community well-being; families are encouraged to become real partners in school life and activities; professionals from enterprise, civil and wider society are actively involved in bringing real-life projects into the classaccount. (European Commission, 2015 - Science Education for Responsible Citizenship)

In this respect, the Horizon 2020 Project: “CONNECT - Inclusive open schooling through engaging and future-oriented science”, tries to support secondary schools to adopt open schooling, by integrating science-actions in the core-curriculum, and promoting using participatory-science with the community: families, universities, and enterprises.

In line with the abovementioned issues, in this Workshop we aim to achieve the following objectives:

- presentation of the Science actions proposed to be introduced in formal and non-formal contexts, in the frame of the CONNECT project;

Timing   40 minutes session	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- analyzing the impact of the activities carried out in 2021, in special pandemic conditions;</li> <li>- identifying ways to optimize the coaching activities, absolutely necessary in the process of Science actions implementation.</li> </ul> Topics   open schooling, innovative didactic strategies, science actions, participatory community Speech &amp; Speakers   Authors   Ana Maria Aurelia PETRESCU - Assoc. (7 minutes for each presentation + 4 minutes for final

Language of presentation | Romanian

Organizers | Faculty of Political Sciences, Letters and Communication, “Valahia” University of Târgoviste, Romania

Short description of the event |

The conference adopts an interdisciplinary perspective accepting work from Linguistics, Literature, Psychology, Sociology, Philosophy, Communication Studies and other associated fields. Carrying forward the outline set by our previous edition when we placed discourse in relation to large-scale social changes and discussed its cultural, social and ethical perspectives, this year’s conference theme, The (Un)Reliability of Discourse in Decision Making – Cultural, Social and Ethical Perspectives, challenges scholars to focus their attention on the role of discourse in decision-making in general, but also in more particular cases, by taking into consideration the degree of reliability that a certain type of discourse presupposes when it comes to using it for more general goals in producing social change.
